MALAYSIA'S IPI SLIPS 0.5 PER CENT IN SEPTEMBER - DOSM

According to the Department of Statistics Malaysia, the Industrial Production Index continued to decline in September 2023 by 0.5 per cent y-o-y after registering a negative 0.3 per cent recorded in the previous month. The decrease was mainly influenced by the 5.2 per cent downturn in the Mining sector. On the other hand, the Manufacturing sector returned to a marginal growth of 0.4 per cent (August 2023: -0.6%), after experiencing a declining trend for three consecutive months. Meanwhile, the Electricity sector ascended by 2.5 per cent as against 1.9 per cent registered in August 2023. Nevertheless, on a monthly basis, the IPI showed continuous expansion with 1.1 per cent growth, after registering 2.8 per cent in August 2023.

The expansion in Manufacturing output was primarily fuelled by the steady performance of domestic-oriented industries, which accelerated by 5.9 per cent in September 2023 (August 2023: 4.2%). This upturn was underpinned by the Manufacture of fabricated metal products, except machinery & equipment (9.6%); Manufacture of food processing products (8.2%); and Manufacture of other non-metallic mineral products (8.0%).

Conversely, the export-oriented industries which constituted about two-thirds of the Manufacturing output remained on a downward trend, albeit with a smaller negative growth of 2.0 per cent in September 2023, compared to a 2.6 per cent decline in the preceding month. The decrease was mainly attributed to the Manufacture of coke & refined petroleum products (-7.7%); Manufacture of machinery & equipment n.e.c. (-4.9%); and Manufacture of computer, electronics & optical products (-1.9%). This trend aligns with the country's export performance which fell by 13.7 percent in September 2023, showing improvement from the negative 18.7 per cent registered in August 2023. As compared to the previous month, the production of both domestic-oriented and export-oriented industries grew by 4.4 per cent and 1.1 per cent, respectively.

The output in the Mining sector edged downward by 5.2 per cent in September 2023 as against a positive 0.1 per cent recorded in August 2023. The downward trend was influenced by Natural Gas production which returned to negative territory, with a decline of 7.8 per cent as opposed to the 2.6 per cent increase in August 2023. Additionally, Crude Oil & Condensate output continued its declining trend, registering a negative 1.4 per cent in September 2023 (August 2023: -3.3%). In comparison with the preceding month, the Mining index decreased by 1.6 per cent as compared to the negative 5.4 per cent recorded in August 2023.

In the meantime, the Electricity output advanced further by 2.5 per cent in September 2023 after registering 1.9 per cent growth in the previous month. A m-o-m comparison, the Electricity index declined by 4.0 per cent, contrasting a positive growth of 0.3 per cent recorded in August 2023.

Overall, in the third quarter of 2023, the IPI registered a marginal decline of 0.04 per cent y-o-y as compared to the negative 0.3 per cent recorded in the second quarter of 2023. During the period, the Mining and Manufacturing sectors decreased by 0.4 per cent and 0.1 per cent, respectively. The Electricity generation increased by 2.0 per cent in this quarter, continuing the positive momentum for three consecutive quarters. Nevertheless, in comparison with the second quarter of 2023, the IPI rebounded to 4.2 per cent predominantly backed by the Manufacturing sector at 5.5 per cent, in line with the quarterly expansion of exports. In addition, imports of intermediate goods also posted quarterly increase, thus signalled higher demand for the industrial production.

The IPI expanded at a slower rate of 0.8 per cent as compared to the same period of the previous year which was 7.7 per cent. The increase was supported by the Manufacturing index (1.1%) and the Electricity index (1.7%). On the other hand, the Mining index dipped by 0.4 per cent.

MALAYSIA'S UNEMPLOYMENT RATE DROPS TO 3.4% AS LABOUR MARKET SHOWS POSITIVE TRENDS - DOSM

According to Department of Statistics Malaysia (DOSM) chief statistician Datuk Seri Dr Mohd Uzir Mahidin, Malaysia's unemployment figures declined to 573,700 individuals in September 2023, yielding an unemployment rate of 3.4%. The labour force saw a slight 0.1% increase to 16.95 million individuals, maintaining a labour force participation rate (LFPR) of 70.1%.

There was a small rise in employed persons to 16.38 million and a decline in unemployment, reflecting current economic progress. In September 2023, the country's labour force position remained in a positive growth trend, with a marginal increase in the number of employed persons, while unemployment continued to decrease, in line with the current economic developments.

Within the employment categories, employees numbered 12.33 million, a minor rise, while own-account workers increased slightly to 2.97 million. In terms of sectors, the services sector led employment growth, with positive momentum also in manufacturing, construction, mining, quarrying, and agriculture.

Specifically, 80% of the unemployed were actively seeking work, showing a minor drop to 458,900 individuals. Youth unemployment rates saw a decrease, with figures dropping to 10.6% for those aged 15-24, and to 6.7% for those aged 15-30. Meanwhile, the count of those outside the labour force edged up by 0.1% to 7.24 million, mainly due to household responsibilities and education.

For 3Q 2023, the labour force climbed by 0.6% to 16.82 million, with employed persons also increasing to 16.25 million, and unemployment falling to 573,100. This resulted in a slight reduction in the unemployment rate to 3.4%. There was a 1.6% increase in those working less than 30 hours per week, marking a rise in time-related under-employment to 189,000 individuals. Skill-related under-employment also rose by 0.4% to 1.92 million people, among those with tertiary education in lower-skill roles.

LFPR across states varied, with Selangor reaching the highest at 77%, indicating greater workforce participation, while the lowest unemployment rate was 0.5% in the Federal Territory of Putrajaya.

UNEARTHING HIDDEN GEMS: THE SMALL- CAP ADVANTAGE FOR RETAIL INVESTORS

Devanesan
Evanson
Chief Executive Officer, Minority
Shareholders Watch Group

Small-cap stocks have often taken a backseat in the eyes of investors, who tend to view them as riskier investments when compared to their larger-cap counterparts. This perception has led some fundamentally-oriented retail investors to avoid small-caps altogether. However, for those willing to invest the time and effort required, exploring small-cap stocks can be rewarding, offering the potential for higher returns. One compelling reason to consider small-caps stocks is the increased likelihood of discovering a “hidden gem” due to their limited research coverage and lack of institutional investor following.

INSTITUTIONAL CONSTRAINTS: A WINNING EDGE FOR RETAIL INVESTORS

Institutional investors, who manage significant capital, typically face limitations when it comes to investing in small-cap stocks, including internal mandates that confine their allocations to companies above a certain market cap threshold and stocks meeting specific liquidity criteria (based on their average daily trading value).

Institutional investors managing portfolios in the billions may also find it not worthwhile to invest in small-cap stocks due to the minimal impact it may have on their overall performance. For instance, if they accumulate a 3% stake worth RM3 million in an RM100 million market cap company, a doubling of the stock price would register as a mere blip within the context of an RM3 billion-sized portfolio.

Conversely, retail investors, who typically manage smaller sums of money, benefit from the opportunity to invest in smaller-cap stocks that have the potential to significantly generate high returns for their portfolios. The lower trading liquidity would also be of lesser concern for retail investors. Warren Buffett's statement in a 1999 interview with Business Week underscores this advantage. He emphasized how managing a smaller pool of money makes it considerably easier to achieve high returns, even going as far as stating that he could "guarantee" a 50% annual return if he was managing just US$1 million.

CAPITALIZING ON MARKET INEFFICIENCIES

The small-cap segment has limited sell-side research coverage compared to large-cap stocks. Brokerage houses rely heavily on institutional investors as substantial clients, resulting in sell-side analysts at these firms prioritizing research coverage for larger-cap stocks, which are deemed more "marketable" or "investable."

The limited coverage in the small-cap segment provides astute retail investors with another distinctive advantage. The efficient market hypothesis, which asserts that stock prices reflect all relevant information and thus always trade at fair values, appears to exert greater influence in the domain of large-cap stocks, because of their extensive research coverage and heightened media attention. In contrast, due to the scarcity of widespread information, small-cap stocks may not fully reflect their latest corporate developments or prospects.

Stock prices of under-researched smaller-cap companies often exhibit a slower response to positive developments, and in some cases, these developments go entirely unnoticed by the investment community. Small-cap stocks may possess similar positive fundamental qualities to their large-cap counterparts, but they could fetch significantly lower valuation.

All these factors create a unique opportunity to fully capitalize on the potential for substantial returns by investing early in lesser-known small-cap companies that begin to show promising prospects, such as strong earnings growth. If a small-cap company falls into the growth stock category, retail investors can benefit from two sources of share price appreciation: earnings growth and a higher valuation (as institutional investors start to take notice once the company reaches a certain size and receives more research coverage).

CASE IN POINT: VITROX CORPORATION BERHAD

A compelling case in point would be Vitrox, an automated machine vision inspection solution provider. If one had discovered and invested in Vitrox a decade ago, their investment would have grown more than 35-fold by today. Back in September 2013, Vitrox had a market capitalization of about RM180 million and attractive fundamental attributes, such as a single-digit price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio, a high return on equity, and a net cash position. What made it even more appealing were its growth prospects, which largely remained under the radar of most investors.

A decade ago, attendance at the company's self-organized quarterly investor briefings was minimal, consisting of just a handful of individuals, including high-net-worth retail investors. Institutional interest was limited, and only one broker actively covered the stock. However, as Vitrox's earnings continued to grow strongly, more brokerage firms began to cover the stock and institutional investors entered the scene (resulting in investor briefings now drawing large turnouts). The growth of Vitrox's stock price began to outpace its earnings as it underwent a valuation surge (also known as a re-rating).

For perspective, Vitrox's earnings from 2013 to 2022 increased eightfold, and the stock currently boasts a market capitalization of over RM6.5 billion with a high P/E valuation of about 40 times. If one had invested in the stock halfway through the period from 2013 to 2023, in mid-2018, they would have still enjoyed around a 2.5-fold increase in the stock price. However, this pales in comparison to the more than 35-fold jump in value that early investors experienced by discovering the stock earlier and holding it through.

So, while investing in large-cap stocks of familiar household names may be comforting, it might be worth searching for promising small-cap companies to uncover investment opportunities that have the potential to yield substantial returns. After all, hidden gems are often found where others have yet to look.
