Dato' Eu Hong Chew Former Group CEO i-Berhad Non-Executive Director

He has been associated with the Sumurwang Group for many years charting the path for its manufacturing arm, firstly under Dreamland Holdings Berhad and the subsequent acquisition of I-Berhad.

Before that, he was with PA Management Consulting for a decade where he was the Director of Studies for the Cranfield PA MBA Programme in Malaysia.

Educated at the Royal Military College, Dato' Eu has an engineering degree from the University of Glasgow, and a MBA from the University of Bradford, UK.

SUMMARY

- Astino Berhad (BURSA.7162) operates in a mature but stable metal roofing industry. While revenue has grown over the past decade, sales volume has declined, indicating reliance on higher selling prices rather than increased demand.
- Earnings have been cyclical, heavily influenced by steel price fluctuations. Over the past 12 years, return on invested capital (ROIC) and return on equity (ROE) barely exceeded the cost of capital, suggesting limited value creation for shareholders.

 Despite modest growth, Astino maintains a solid balance sheet with minimal debt and strong cash flows. However, a high reinvestment rate raises concerns about the availability of excess returns for shareholders.

BACKGROUND

Astino is principally engaged in the manufacturing and trading of metal building materials and other steel products. While its products included metal roofing, purlins, steel pipes, and agrofacilities, the focus is on its roofing products.

While the Group delivered revenue growth over the past decade, sales volume has declined. Refer to Chart 1. The increasing revenue with lower sales volume implies increasing unit selling prices.

Secondly, this is a Group where domestic sales accounted for the bulk of the revenue.

MARKET DEMAND

According to 6Wresearch and Research Markets, the metal roofing market in Malaysia is a significant segment within the broader roofing industry. Metal roofing accounted for about 25-30% of the total roofing market in Malaysia. This market share reflects a steady demand driven by the durability, low maintenance, and energy efficiency benefits associated with metal roofing materials.

This is not a high-growth sector as exemplified by the following:

"...Metal Roofing Market to Exhibit Significant Growth at 4.95% CAGR, Reaching USD 30.13 Billion by 2030, Backed by Increasing Construction Activities." The Malaysia Reserve quoting Kings Research.

OPERATING PERFORMANCE

Over the past 12 years, revenue grew at 2.1% CAGR while PAT grew at 1.8% CAGR. However, as shown in the left part of Chart 2, PAT was more volatile.

 The adverse performance in 2015 was mainly due to a decrease in overseas demand for products and lower profit margins.

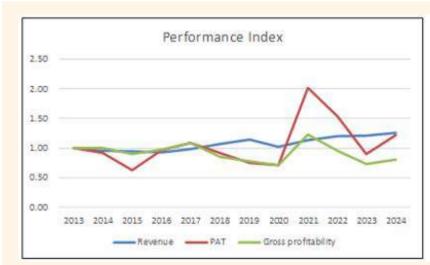

Chart 2: Performance Index and Returns

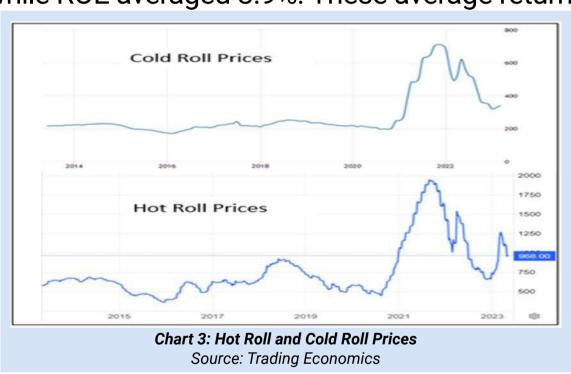

Note: The original analysis was prepared before the release of the 2024 audited results. As such, the 2024 values in this article and charts were based on the Jan 2024 LTM performance.

- The drop in 2019 was due to lower gross profit margins and a higher effective tax rate.
- The spike in PAT in 2021 was due to higher selling prices. This led to a gross profit margin of 22% compared to the 14% for the previous 2 years.

The 2021 and 2022 profits were externally driven in that Astino benefited from the spike in global steel prices as illustrated in Chart 3. But as can be seen, steel prices declined thereafter. This resulted in declining profits in 2023 despite growing revenue.

Over the past 12 years, there was hardly any growth in the returns. ROIC averaged 8.5% while ROE averaged 8.9%. These average returns were around the current 8.4% WACC and 8.7% cost of equity. Comparing the returns and the cost of funds, I would say that it barely created shareholders' value.

PEER PERFORMANCE

There is only one other roofing manufacturer on Bursa Malaysia – Ajiya. Thus, to get a better peer analysis, I included the following:

- CSC Steel this is a cold rolling mill with steel pipe products.
- United U-Li this is an electrical cable tray manufacturer.

Table 1 summarizes the comparative size in terms of revenue. This is not a high revenue growth sector as all of them achieved singledigit CAGR over the past

Company	Revenue
	2023	2013 to 2023
	RM m	%
Ajiya	305	-2%
Astino	617	2%
CSC Steel	1559	3%
U-Li	259	5%

Table 1: Peer revenue

decade. Ajiya even had a negative growth rate, suggesting that Astino did alright.

FINANCIAL POSITION

Despite its lacklustre operating performance, there are many positive points from a financial perspective. As of the end of Oct 2024,

- It had RM87 million in cash and short-term investments. This is about 14% of the total assets.
- It had a debt-capital ratio of 4%. This had reduced from its 34% high in 2013.

Over the past 12 years, it generated RM548 million cash flow from operations compared to the RM 399million PAT. This is a good cash conversion ratio.

It has a good capital allocation plan as shown in Table 2. You can see that CAPEX was about 39% of the cash flow from operations.

	RM '000 547,736 2,316

Table 2: Sources and Uses of Funds 2013 to 2024

But I have 2 concerns:

- There were 2 years with negative cash flow from operations over the past 12 years.
- It had a high average reinvestment rate of 61%. This meant that there may not be much excess NOPAT that could be returned to shareholders.

But I would conclude that the positive points more than outweigh my concerns. As such, I would consider Astino financially sound.

VALUATION

The picture that emerged from the above analysis is that Astino is a cyclical company in a low-growth sector. Given its low earnings growth track record, I think it is more appropriate to value Astino based on its Earnings Power Value (EPV) ie ignoring growth. On such a basis, I found that it had an EPV of RM1.12 per share. Its Book Value at the end of Jul 2024 was RM1.15 per share. Refer to the original article for details of the valuation.

Its market price at the end of Dec 2024 was RM0.62 per share. There is more than a 30% margin of safety under both valuation metrics.

VALUE TRAP

A value trap is a stock that appears undervalued but continues to underperform because of underlying business weaknesses or unfavourable industry trends. Investors who buy into a value trap expecting a rebound may end up holding a stagnant or declining investment for years.

Astino is a profitable business and is financially sound. While it is in a mature sector, it is not a sunset industry. I do not see any digital or other disruption on the horizon.

My valuation showed that there is more than a 30% margin of safety under both the NTA and EPV. As such, I would not consider Astino a value trap. Its low market price is due more to market sentiments.

CONCLUSION

Astino operates in a cyclical, low-growth sector but has demonstrated financial resilience and profitability. While its earnings have been volatile due to fluctuations in steel prices, the company remains fundamentally sound. Despite concerns over its reinvestment rate and occasional negative cash flow years, Astino's balance sheet strength and prudent capital allocation mitigate these risks.

From a valuation perspective, the stock offers a significant margin of safety, trading well below its EPV and Book Value. While market sentiment may be weighing on its share price, the underlying business does not exhibit the characteristics of a value trap. No evident structural disruptions are threatening its core operations, and its financial health suggests that it is well-positioned to weather industry cycles.

I am a long-term value investor who has held onto stocks for more than 5 years. My analysis and valuation are from such a perspective. I consider quarterly results "noisy" and focus on long-term trends.

This article was derived from a detailed analysis, emphasizing the intersection of business performance and valuation metrics, which was first published on i4value as "Is Astino a value trap?" Refer to the article for further insights on its investment risk vs business performance.

GLICs urged to invest around RM120b over five years for economic growth PM Anwar ccording to Prime Minister Datuk Seri Anwar Ibrahim, Government-linked investment companies (GLICs) have been urged to make domestic direct investments (DDIs) of about RM120 billion over five years to stimulate the country's economic growth.

PM Anwar, who is also the finance minister, said the government's emphasis and key performance indicators are not solely profitdriven, but are based on an approach referred to as "GEAR-uP".

During a question-and-answer session in the Dewan Negara on Thursday, he said that GEAR-uP involves six GLICs, and the collective strength of the GLICs investing around RM120 billion over five years (RM25 billion in 2025) will generate economic growth, in addition to the approved budget.

He was responding to a question from Senator Datuk Mustafa Musa regarding the current focus of government-linked companies (GLCs) and GLICs to ensure that dividend contributions would strengthen the government's estimated revenue for 2025.

He added that the latest development budget is the highest compared to those in the previous years. He noted that in addition to the RM440 billion in public market investments under existing investment programmes, the investments are focused on high-growth, high-value (HGHV) sectors such as energy transition, state-of-the-art manufacturing, particularly in semiconductors, involving investments across all stages of a company's lifecycle - from start-ups and venture capital to mid-tier companies - and supporting the listing of these companies.

Malaysia has already started to see positive momentum in investments directed toward the HGHV sector, such as Khazanah Nasional Bhd, through its Dana Impak, setting aside RM1 billion for its three main initiatives of Jelawang Capital, Semiconductor Investment, and Mid-Tier Companies.

Additionally, under Budget 2025, Retirement Fund (Inc) (KWAP) is investing through the RM1 billion Dana Perintis and RM6 billion Dana Pemacu, along with other GLICs like Permodalan Nasional Bhd (PNB), which strengthens the Bumiputera investment "relay race" by developing strategic industrial parks such as the Kerian Integrated Green Industrial Park.

Anwar also said the 2024 performance of GLICs like Khazanah, KWAP and the Employees Provident Fund (EPF) was strong and encouraging, driven by the performance of the GLCs and the country's broader investment landscape. He noted that this performance reflects the success of the Madani Economy framework, which drives strong economic growth through economic reforms that inspire confidence in investors, contributing to the performance of the capital market in 2024.

He reiterated that the Madani reforms emphasise governance, which is a priority for GLICs to ensure responsible and effective investment management. He urged GLICs and GLCs to become an exemplary benchmark for efficient and trustworthy management to prevent wastage, calling an end to wasteful practices they hold the trust and public funds.

He added "I am pleased to announce that GLICs and GLCs are adhering strictly to directives, which is why their performance has significantly improved with reduced management costs and leakage prevention, leading to better profits".

SC& Khazanah tointroduce tokenisation of bonds, sukuk in 2025

ccording to The Securities Commission Malaysia (SC) chairman Datuk Mohammad Faiz Azmi, the SC is collaborating with Khazanah Nasional Bhd to introduce the tokenisation of bonds and sukuk this year in a move to broaden retail participation in Malaysia's capital market.

He said this initiative seeks to make bonds more accessible to retail investors, addressing the current limitation where only sophisticated investors can participate in certain bond issuances. He added that one of the things SC will be announcing later this year is a kind of an experiment with Khazanah to see how to tokenise bonds. And it is based on the logic that if a bond can be tokenised, the investors don't have to buy the whole bond but buy just a percentage of it. He was speaking at a press conference in conjunction with the release of SC's Annual Report 2024.

He added that the idea behind that is to be able to do away with the sophisticated investor requirement. This initiative will allow SC and Khazanah to assess key functionalities such as smart contracts and custodial arrangements while evaluating the benefits and risks of blockchain-based securities. At present, corporate bonds in Malaysia are predominantly issued to sophisticated investors.

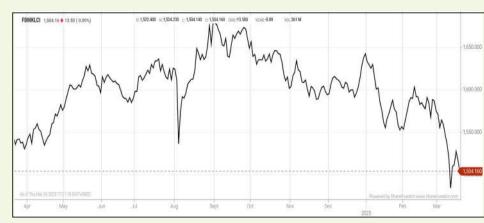

However, he acknowledged that the pace of tokenisation depends on regulatory considerations, particularly from Bank Negara Malaysia. He reiterated that there are a number of thought processes in that whole digital asset space and tokenisation is certainly on the agenda. But that the pace of it depends also on how the central bank views it. Despite this, he expressed optimism, citing ongoing discussions within the government to advance digital asset adoption.

He concluded with, "The good thing is there's a lot of conversations going on in the government. I'll let the government announce the plans when they finally come out, but they do want to move the needle. And we, at SC, are more than happy to support that."

enting Berhad's appointment of a non-family member as CEO marks a historic milestone in Malaysia's corporate landscape. While the move is commendable, it remains to be seen whether the new CEO will have the autonomy to lead and set a precedent for corporate leadership succession in the country.

A TRUE GOVERNANCE REVOLUTION OR BUSINESS AS USUAL?

For decades, Genting Berhad has been synonymous with the Lim family's legacy-a dynasty built on gaming, entertainment, and global expansion. Founded by the late Tan Sri Lim Goh Tong, the Company became one of Malaysia's most iconic conglomerates, dominating the casino, hospitality, and tourism industries while expanding into energy, plantations, and biotechnology. The Lim family's influence over Genting has been absolute, with family members holding key leadership positions.

As such, it was a historical moment to see the family patriarch Tan Sri Lim Kok Thay pass the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) baton of the flagship vehicle to Datuk Seri Tan Kong Han, a non-family executive, after almost two decades at the helm. However, Kok Thay continues to serve as the executive chairman of Genting.

This marks a significant departure from its tradition of family-led leadership, raising a critical question: Will Tan have the power to lead, or will the Lim family still pull the strings behind the scenes?

Leadership changes in family-controlled businesses are often met with scepticism. Many family-owned corporations have historically struggled to balance professional management and family influence, resulting in power struggles, short-lived tenures, and governance conflicts. The transition at Genting comes at a time of financial and strategic uncertainty, making this shift even more crucial.

FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE UNDER PRESSURE

Genting is a diversified conglomerate spanning gaming, hospitality, plantations, energy, and biotechnology, with a global presence in Singapore, the United States, and the United Kingdom. Under Kok Thay's leadership, the Group expanded aggressively, maintaining its dominance in gaming and entertainment while venturing into biotechnology and renewable energy.

However, recent years have been challenging. The COVID-19 pandemic severely impacted its casino and tourism businesses, leading to sharp revenue declines and operational disruptions. Rising regulatory scrutiny and increasing competition in the gaming sector have further pressured its business model.

Its latest financial results reflect these headwinds. For the fourth quarter of the financial year ended 31 December 2024, Genting's revenue fell 5% to RM6.88 billion, with adjusted EBITDA dropping to RM1.68 billion, primarily due to weaker contributions from its Leisure & Hospitality Division compared to the same quarter in the previous financial year. Besides, a stronger ringgit against major currencies such as the US dollar, pound sterling, and Singapore dollar also eroded earnings. This resulted in a quarterly net loss of RM169.38 million, its first since the fourth quarter of 2022, raising investor concerns about its long-term resilience.

Despite these headwinds, full-year 2024 revenue grew 2.2% to RM27.72 billion, though net income declined slightly to RM882.95 million due to lower adjusted EBITDA and finance costs.

Its share price performance has been volatile, trading between RM3.05 and RM5.10 for the past year. As of 11 March 2025, it closed at RM3.24, giving it a market capitalisation of RM12.56 billion. With the counter now trading near its 52-week low, analysts are split - is this a temporary setback or a sign of more profound structural weaknesses?

Genting's financial struggles are not unique—several competitors in the casino and hospitality industry have also faced challenges. Las Vegas Sands and MGM Resorts, two of Genting's closest global competitors, reported similar pandemic-related declines. Still, both companies saw a more substantial post-pandemic recovery, mainly due to their aggressive digital expansion and non-gaming revenue diversification. In contrast, Genting's postpandemic recovery has been slower, partly due to its continued reliance on its traditional gaming segment.

With Tan stepping in as CEO, investors are now watching the numbers and the leadership dynamic. Will he have the authority to implement strategic reforms, or will he be a figurehead operating under the Lim family's continued influence?

GOVERNANCE OR ILLUSION? THE REAL POWER BEHIND GENTING'S LEADERSHIP SHIFT

The Malaysian Code on Corporate Governance (MCCG) promotes a clear separation of Chairman and CEO roles to enhance accountability and prevent excessive power concentration. Previously, Kok Thay held both roles at Genting Berhad, consolidating control within the family. A formal separation of roles was established after Tan was appointed CEO.

However, governance is not just about structure—it is about actual authority. The real question is whether this transition marks a fundamental shift in Genting's governance or is it merely a symbolic change while real decision-making remains in the hands of the family.

While offering long-term vision and stability, family-controlled businesses often struggle with succession planning, board independence, and professional autonomy. In many cases, nonfamily CEOs have limited real power, as strategic decisions continue to be dictated by the controlling family. While governance structures may look strong, they are not always practised in spirit, leading to internal conflicts and governance bottleneck.

Several global governance frameworks offer insights that could guide Genting's leadership transition and help mitigate the risks often associated with family-controlled businesses appointing non-family CEOs.

Germany's Governance Code for Family Businesses encourages companies to separate ownership from management, emphasising the importance of establishing independent advisory boards. These boards, typically composed of external professionals with diverse expertise, act as a neutral oversight body, ensuring that company leadership makes decisions in the best interests of all stakeholders, rather than being overly influenced by family interests. The framework also promotes longterm sustainability by ensuring succession planning processes are clearly defined and not left to informal family arrangements.

Meanwhile, Italy's Corporate Governance Code strongly emphasises board independence and structured succession planning, which are critical in ensuring a smooth leadership transition in family-run enterprises. The code advocates for a robust governance structure that empowers non-family CEOs with absolute authority to make strategic decisions without interference from controlling family members. It also suggests that family-owned firms incorporate a majority of independent directors into their boards, ensuring that corporate oversight is conducted with objectivity and professionalism.

Similarly, the International Finance Corporation (IFC)'s Family Business Governance Handbook highlights the importance of separating family ownership discussions from business decision-making. It recommends establishing family councils, acting as a structured forum where family members can discuss ownership, succession, and long-term vision without meddling in the company's daily operations. This approach ensures that while family interests are recognised, the CEO and executive team retain full operational control, enabling them to execute strategies that drive long-term growth and shareholder value.

If Genting wants to prove that its governance shift is real, it must go beyond cosmetic changes and demonstrate a real commitment to professional independence, board oversight, and transparency.

CAN GENTING AVOID THE FATE OF OTHERS?

Malaysia has seen several cases where non-family CEOs were appointed in family-controlled businesses, with mixed results.

Berjaya Corporation Berhad appointed Jalil Rasheed as Group CEO in 2021. However, his tenure lasted just over a year before leadership reverted to internal executives, raising questions about how much autonomy non-family leaders genuinely have.

Meanwhile, PPB Group Berhad, a diversified conglomerate which is controlled by Robert Kuok decided to transition to professional management decades ago with Lim Soon Huat appointed to the Board in 2008 to steer the Company. Under his helm, PPB Group has been delivering consistent financial performance and shareholder returns.

As for Genting, its new CEO is not an outsider. Tan has been with the company for years, making his leadership a more gradual transition than an abrupt change. The question remains: Will this internal appointment lead to real governance reform or business as usual?

A DEFINING MOMENT FOR MALAYSIA'S FAMILY BUSINESSES

Genting's leadership transition is more than just a CEO change—it is a test case for governance evolution in Malaysian family-controlled businesses. If this transition is executed with true independence, where Tan is given full authority to lead, it could set a benchmark for corporate leadership succession in Malaysia. A successful transition would signal that family-owned companies can embrace professional leadership without compromising their long-term vision, reinforcing investor confidence and pushing governance reforms across the corporate sector.

This moment extends beyond Genting. The success or failure of this transition could shape the future of corporate governance in Malaysia, influencing how family businesses approach leadership succession in the years to come.

Will Genting's move inspire a new wave of corporate independence, or will it expose the limits of governance reform in entrenched family-run businesses? The corporate world is watching-because the answer will determine whether this is the beginning of a true governance revolution or just another illusion of change.
