SUMMARY

- FMC Corporation (NYSE:FMC) has consistently delivered returns above its cost of capital, despite a 2023 revenue decline caused by industry-wide destocking.
- Peer comparisons show FMC outperformed on return on capital, EBIT margin, and EPS - indicating operational strength even during industry downturns.

 With Project Focus driving cost savings and no structural decline in crop protection demand, FMC presents a compelling long-term value opportunity if destocking proves to be short-term.

BACKGROUND

FMC is a 130-year-old agricultural sciences company, currently positioned as the fifth largest global innovator in the crop protection market. After spinning off its lithium business in Q1 2019, the company took its present form.

FMC operates in four product categories – insecticides, herbicides, fungicides, and others - with a well-diversified global footprint. The insecticides segment is the biggest revenue contributor. Refer to Chart 1. The global crop protection market is mature, with moderate annual growth rates projected at around 5% through 2028 to 2029. FMC is estimated to hold about 5% of the global market share.

While FMC's revenue grew from 2019 to 2022, it declined in 2023 due to a historic industry-wide destocking cycle. To address the revenue downturn, FMC launched Project Focus at the end of 2023 - an initiative aimed at cost reduction and operational efficiency.

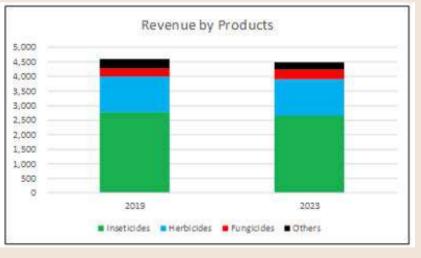

Chart 1: Revenue trends

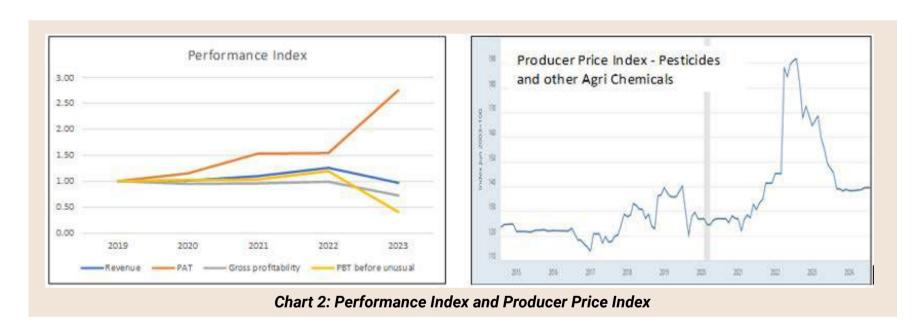

OPERATING PERFORMANCE

From 2019 to 2023, FMC's revenue declined at a CAGR of 0.7%, primarily due to industry-wide destocking in 2023. Over this period, volume dropped by 5%, which was partially offset by 3% price growth, driven by a 2022–2023 spike in agricultural prices. Refer to the right part of Chart 2.

Despite the 2023 revenue drop, PAT spiked due to a one-time tax benefit from its Swiss and Brazilian operations. Refer to the left part of Chart 2. On average over 2019–2023:

- ROIC was 14%, exceeding the WACC of 7%.
- ROE averaged 22%, well above the 8% cost of equity.

Even excluding 2023, the 2019–2022 ROE was 21%, indicating consistent value creation for shareholders.

Despite the good returns, the efficiency picture was mixed.

- Gross profitability (gross profit/total assets), as shown in the left part of Chart 2, held steady from 2019–2022 but dipped in 2023 due to destocking.
- Capital efficiency remained strong until 2023.
- Operating efficiency showed mixed results ROA and Opex ratio improved through 2022, but operating margin and inventory turnover fell, worsening in 2023.

Since its 2019 restructuring, FMC has not made any major acquisitions (>USD 1 billion). Growth has primarily come from organic initiatives:

- USD660 million in CAPEX vs. USD220 million on acquisitions.
- Organic revenue grew at a 4.5% CAGR, excluding forex effects.

The average reinvestment rate was 50% based on NOPAT, suggesting a healthy reinvestment strategy.

PEER PERFORMANCE

In terms of 2023 revenue, FMC is one of the smallest among its peers (see Table 1). This is likely because

Company	Rev	enue
Service Control	2023	2019 to 2023
	USD m	CAGR %
FMC	4,487	-1%
Bayer	52,951	2%
BASF	76,067	3%
Corteva (CTVA)	17,226	6%

Table 1: Peer revenue

FMC focuses exclusively on crop protection, whereas others have more diversified product portfolios - possibly shielding them from the revenue decline seen in 2023.

To evaluate performance, four key metrics were compared: Return on capital, EBIT margin, Free cash flow (FCF) margin, and EPS growth. The key takeaways were:

- Despite lower revenue, FMC consistently outperformed on return on capital and EBIT margins throughout most of the period.
- EPS performance was among the best, highlighting strong earnings resilience.
- The free cash flow margin was solid from 2019 to 2022 but deteriorated sharply in 2023, becoming the worst among peers.

FMC's strong historical performance - even during a downturn - suggests a substantial upside if Project Focus delivers on its promised efficiencies.

The peer comparison reinforces the view that FMC is operationally sound and that 2023 was more of a temporary setback than a structural issue.

FINANCIAL POSITION

FMC's financial position can be considered average, with a balance of strengths and weaknesses.

Strengths

- FMC was consistently profitable over the past 5 years, with returns exceeding its cost of funds.
- It demonstrated strong capital allocation discipline. Cash flow from operations fully covered CAPEX and acquisitions, with the surplus returned to shareholders (see Table 2).

Item	Sources	Uses
	USD m	USD m
Cash flow from Ops	2,152
New shares	98
Net Debt	1,325
Acquisitions	HEMOTE DESCRIPTION OF THE PERSON OF THE PERS	220
CAPEX		660
Dividends		1,244
Buybacks		1,073
Misc		379
Total	3,576	3,576

Table 2: Sources and Uses of Funds 2019 to 2023

Weaknesses

 As of Dec 2024, the debt-to-capital ratio stood at 43%, down from 54% in 2019 but above the industry average of 41% (Damodaran, Jan 2024).

- It had USD357 million in cash at the end of Dec 2024, only about 3% of total assets, suggesting low liquidity.
- Over the 5 years (excluding 2023), FMC generated USD2.1 billion in cash from operations vs. USD3.8 billion in total PAT - a modest cash conversion rate.

Despite the high leverage and modest liquidity, FMC generates sufficient operating cash flow to cover investments. With the potential to reduce debt by cutting back on dividends or buybacks, its financial risks appear manageable.

VALUATION

Based on my analysis, I valued FMC under the following scenario. (Refer to the original article for details of the valuation.)

Growth outlook: As a mature company, long-term revenue is expected to grow at 4% annually, in line with global GDP. Future acquisitions are assumed to be minor.

2024 baseline: The impact of industry destocking is expected to persist into 2024, so the Jun 2024 LTM revenue is used as the base, consistent with FMC's Q2 2024 guidance.

Margins & efficiency: Despite Project Focus, no operational or capital efficiency improvements are assumed. Instead, the 2020–2023 averages for margin and revenue-to-assets are used.

Tax rate: The 2023 tax benefit is treated as a one-off. A normalized average tax rate from 2020–2022 is applied.

Reinvestment: Based on the fundamental growth formula of Growth = Return × Reinvestment Rate.

On such bases, I obtained an intrinsic value of USD84 per share. Compared to the market price of USD49 (as of the end of Dec 2024), there is more than a 30% margin of safety.

CONCLUSION

FMC is a mature player in a mature industry, yet over the past 5 years, it has consistently delivered returns above its cost of capital, creating real shareholder value. With the launch of Project Focus, the company is targeting significant cost savings, positioning itself for improved efficiency and enhanced returns going forward.

The key challenge remains the industry-wide destocking, which severely impacted 2023 results. However, there is no evidence of structural weakness in the global crop protection market. The downturn appears to be cyclical rather than permanent.

My valuation shows that there is a sufficient margin of safety:

- If you believe that destocking is temporary and that demand will rebound, FMC presents a compelling value opportunity.
- If you think the downturn signals a longer-term decline in demand, then this may not be the right investment for you.

I am a long-term value investor who has held onto stocks for more than 5 years. My analysis and valuation are from such a perspective. I consider quarterly results "noisy" and focus on long-term trends.

This article was re-purposed from my article "FMC: The Market Is Overreacting To The Industry's Destocking," which was first published in Seeking Alpha. Refer to this link for more of my insights on other US companies.

Malaysia's IPO market will remain resilient amid global headwinds -Bursa chairman ccording to Bursa Malaysia chairman Tan Sri Abdul Wahid Omar, Malaysia's IPO pipeline is expected to remain resilient with continued listings throughout the year despite persistent global uncertainties and external shocks. He acknowledged the prevailing turbulence in the global economy stemming from fluctuating tariffs, policy shifts and geopolitical tensions.

He was speaking to reporters at the recent Bursa Malaysia, Economic Club Kuala Lumpur and CIMB roundtable when he noted that with regards to global headwinds and turbulence, we do not really know what will be coming next because of what is being implemented and adjusted. However, the importance is on building resilience among Malaysian companies and the broader economy. He added that what is important for us is to ensure we create resilience among companies in Malaysia.

Central to this effort is Bursa's Public Listed Companies Transformation Programme (PLCTP), which was launched three years ago to enhance their fundamentals and performance. The programme now includes 326 companies, representing 64% of the total market capitalisation. It focuses on five key areas, including being purpose-driven, improving performance, enhancing ethics, prioritising environmental, social and governance and deepening investor engagement.

He noted with optimism that PLCs with strong fundamentals can mitigate the impact of external shocks. If they continue to focus on their fundamentals and performance, the effects of externalities can be minimised.

However, he cautioned that current uncertainties may affect the IPO pipeline. Last year, Bursa successfully listed 55 companies. This year the target is 60. So far, 15 companies have been listed of which two on the Main Market and 13 on the ACE Market. Another company will be listed on April 15, bringing the total to 16.

He noted that some companies have opted to delay their listings due to current market conditions, citing 'a bit of an extension in timeline' for some IPOs. However, he remains optimistic that in the coming months, once market conditions stabilise and there is greater clarity on external developments, many of these companies will proceed with their IPOs.

On the issue of US tariffs and their sector-specific impact, he said the effects vary depending on the industry. In sectors like E&E, there are still many exemptions, so the impact is currently minimal. But the volatility and policy changes create uncertainty, particularly in terms of production and order flows.

With regards to Malaysia's participation in trade discussions in Washington on April 23, he stressed on the importance of maintaining a balanced diplomatic and trade stance saying that it is crucial for Malaysia to continue positioning itself as a neutral country, not aligned to any single bloc. He added that Malaysia must engage with all parties and continue expanding ASEAN and bilateral trade relations. Any decisions in international negotiations must be grounded in Malaysia's national interest and whatever we manage must be based on the interest of Malaysia as a country.

ASEAN+3 Well Positioned for Resilience Amid Unprecedented Trade Shocks - AMRO

ccording to the ASEAN+3 Macroeconomic Research Office (AMRO) annual flagship report, the ASEAN+3 Regional Economic Outlook (AREO) 2025 highlights the region's resilience and policy capacity to withstand unprecedented global trade shocks following the US administration's sweeping tariff announcement on April 2. These tariffs mark a sharp escalation in trade protectionism and have introduced heightened uncertainty, far exceeding market expectations.

According to AMRO Chief Economist Hoe Ee Khor, the announcement of elevated and broad-based tariffs by the US, and the developments since, have added significant layers of complexity to the ASEAN+3 region's outlook. He added that nevertheless, ASEAN+3 economies today are more resilient and diversified than during past global shocks and better positioned to navigate the unfolding tariff shock.

The ASEAN+3 region faces a disproportionate impact from the US tariff measures. 13 out of the 14 member economies are subject to some of the highest effective tariff rates in the April 2 announcement, with a trade-weighted average estimated at 26 percent excluding China. These rates remain fluid and will likely evolve further in the coming months. These tariffs and the uncertainty generated by the constant shifts in policies are expected to weaken trade momentum, disrupt supply chains, and increase financial market volatility.

Still, the ASEAN+3 regional outlook is underpinned by resilient fundamentals. Prior to the announcement of the "Liberation Day" tariffs, AMRO had projected the region to grow above 4.0 percent in 2025 and 2026, supported by robust domestic demand, recovering investment, and low, stable inflation. However, the US tariff measures have introduced considerable uncertainty. Under the initial Liberation Day scenario, regional growth could slip below 4.0 percent in 2025 and weaken further to 3.4 percent in 2026. These preliminary projections are subject to significant uncertainties, as the US administration continually adjusts its tariff measures in response to market reactions and counter measures by trading partners.

While these trade shocks will weigh on ASEAN+3, the region is entering this period from a position of relative strength and resilience. ASEAN+3 economies possess ample policy space to cushion nearterm shocks. Many governments have the fiscal capacity to deliver targeted support to vulnerable sectors and sustain domestic demand. Central banks in the region have room to ease monetary policy in view of the low and well-anchored inflation rates, and can deploy macroprudential tools and liquidity facilities to safeguard financial stability.

Over the years, regional economies have become more balanced, with domestic demand and intraregional trade emerging as key drivers of growth. Moreover, the region is now supported by a more diversified export market. The region's share of exports to the US has declined steadily over the years. Exports to the US now make up just 15 percent of gross exports, compared to about 24 percent in 2000. Deepening intraregional trade and rapidly expanding domestic markets have reduced dependency on any single export market. Continued progress in regional integration and trade diversification will further strengthen the region's ability to weather global turbulence.

As the region responds to these near-term risks, it should continue to aim at achieving development goals to revitalize its declining long-term growth and further build resilience to external shocks.

According to Allen Ng, AMRO Group Head for Regional Surveillance, reinvigorating structural reforms and enhancing productivity are critical to unlocking the region's untapped growth potential. Accelerating digitalization, embracing green transitions, and boosting productivity, can help ASEAN+3 sustain resilient, high-quality growth. Key medium to long-term priorities include upgrading industrial capabilities, diversifying into renewable energy industries and markets, narrowing investment gaps, strengthening institutional capacity, increasing services productivity, and deepening integration in areas such as services and digital trade.

Despite today's uncertain environment, the region has demonstrated its ability to endure and adapt. Khor concluded by saying that the ASEAN+3 has proven its remarkable resilience time and again in the face of global shocks. In this volatile trade landscape, unity and coordinated action will be essential. There are no winners in a trade war-but together, we can emerge stronger. ASEAN to re-establish swap arrangement toenhance financial safety, resilience - AFMGM ccording to a joint statement from the 12th ASEAN Finance Ministers' and Central Bank Governors' Meeting (AFMGM), ASEAN is looking forward to re-establishing the ASEAN Swap Arrangement (ASA) to strengthen the region's financial safety net and resilience.

The regional bloc encourages further collaboration to expand financial access and enhance liquidity management, supporting intra-ASEAN trade and investment, through the endorsed Model Operating Guidelines for Local Currency Transaction Framework in ASEAN.

It reaffirms the commitment to financial stability and deepening regional integration, and welcomes the support of the United Kingdom (UK) for the finance sector's End-Term Review of the ASEAN Economic Community Blueprint 2025.

It also added that as the bloc transitions to the ASEAN Strategic Plan 2026-2030, it is encouraged to build on existing collaboration while advancing innovative and forward-looking synergies to support the realisation of the ASEAN Community Vision 2045.

On taxation, ASEAN expressed support for ongoing efforts to strengthen cooperation through the completion and refinement of bilateral tax treaties among ASEAN Member States. It noted the need to share knowledge on the implementation of base erosion and profit shifting (BEPS) Pillar 2 and advance discussions on tax transparency initiatives to strengthen cooperation between member states.

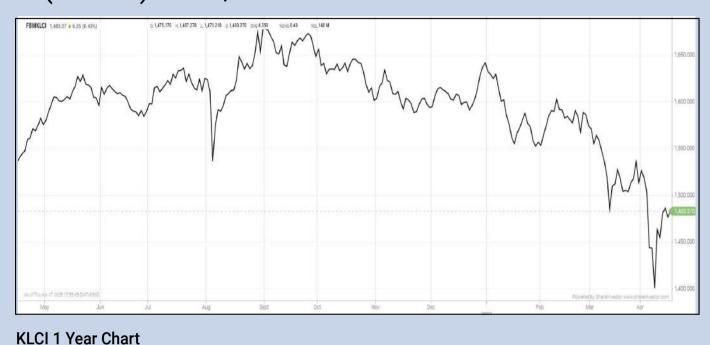

Malaysia's proposal for a Tax Identification Number (TIN) framework will also improve information exchange under the Common Reporting Standard, ensuring greater accuracy in tax compliance across ASEAN. Furthermore, ASEAN emphasised the importance of combating financial crime, fraud, and scams through coordinated regional efforts, enhanced information-sharing mechanisms, and contributions to global discourse.

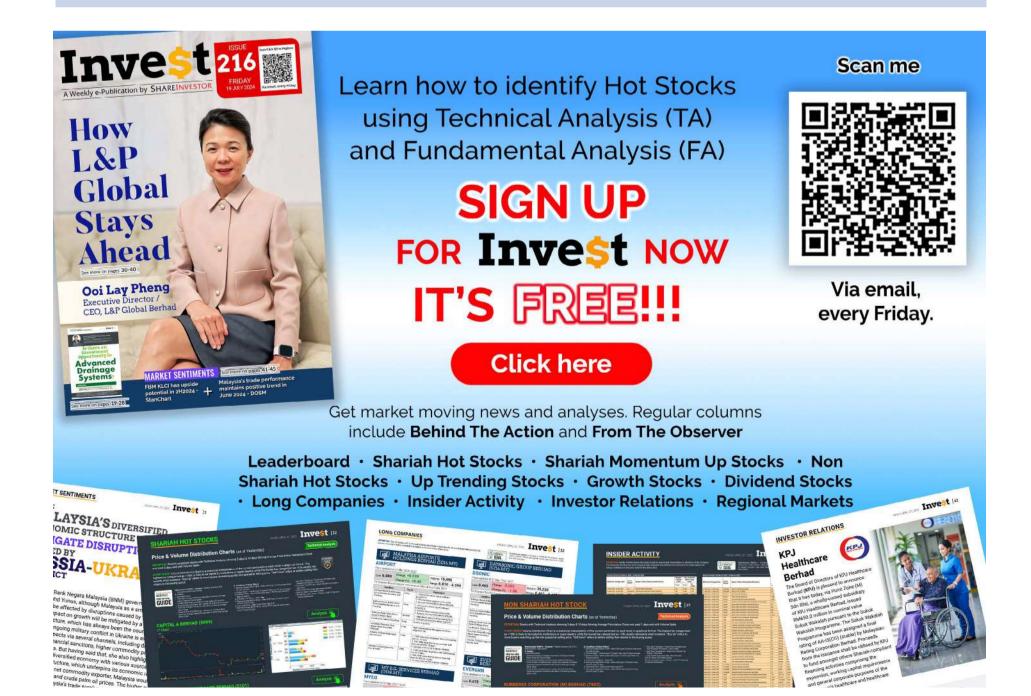

The bloc reaffirmed its commitment to strengthening crossborder payment oversight, expanding instant payment linkages, and enhancing cybersecurity to mitigate risks associated with digital transactions. To promote safety in the financial system, it emphasises the importance of coordinated regional efforts, to combat financial crime, fraud, and scams.

It added that financial regulators and banks across ASEAN have agreed to collaborate on developing a regional ecosystem to fight fraud and scams, integrating both pre- and post-scam mitigation strategies to address evolving threats.

t's not how many hats you wear but whether you can wear them well. When it comes to directors holding multiple executive roles, there's no one-size-fits-all. The real question is whether they can truly deliver on each responsibility without compromising governance or performance.

WEARING TOO MANY HATS,

Holding multiple directorships is not uncommon in Malaysia. Nevertheless, recent developments have sparked debates around how many executive roles an individual should reasonably hold in public listed companies (PLCs). There is no straightforward answer, as a director's effectiveness, especially in an executive capacity, hinges on a range of factors, including board composition, governance structure, and the organisation's overall capacity.

A COMMON SIGHT

For now, Bursa Malaysia Listing Requirements (LR) paragraph 15.06(1) limits the number of directorships an individual could hold in PLCs to not more than five. The LRs do not limit the number of executive or non-executive roles one could hold.

It is common to see family-run PLCs with family members taking up executive roles across multiple boards, as in the case of a conglomerate.

For instance, the Yeoh family consists mainly of Tan Sri Francis Yeoh Sock Ping and his six siblings, who serve executive roles across multiple PLCs, namely YTL Corporation Berhad, YTL Power International Berhad and Malayan Cement Berhad. Francis Yeoh is the executive chairman (EC) of the three listed entities, while his siblings take up the managing director (MD) and executive director (ED) roles.

Another notable example is Genting Group, where the family patriarch Tan Sri Lim Kok Thay helms EC and deputy EC roles in Genting Berhad, Genting Malaysia Berhad and Genting Plantations Berhad. In what is considered a pivotal moment for Genting, Kok Thay relinquished the chief executive baton to Datuk Seri Tan Kong Han last month. He remains the chief executive of Genting Malaysia and Genting Plantations. He is also the EC of Genting Singapore Limited, an SGX-listed hospitality and resort player.

Among the mid and smaller-cap PLCs, there is Datuk Seri Chiau Beng Teik, who sits in five PLCs. He is the EC of Chin Hin Group Berhad and Ajiya Berhad. He also serves as Non independent non-executive chairman on the boards of Chin Hin Group Property Berhad, Signature International Berhad and Fiamma Holdings Berhad. Meanwhile, his son Chiau Haw Choon holds executive roles in all five PLCs, being the MD and/or executive director in these listed outfits. Beng Teik's daughter Shelly Chiau Yee Wern also serves as ED of Chin Hin Group, Chin Hin Group Property and Signature International.

Elsewhere, Datuk Keh Chuan Seng, who was recently under the radar due to his abrupt resignations from a few PLCs due to personal circumstances, was the EC in K Seng Seng Corporation Berhad, Tex Cycle Technology (M) Berhad and Ge-Shen Corporation Berhad, in which he held significant stakes of 22.98%, 26.44%, and 29.59%, respectively.

Lastly, Mak Siew Wei, who was recently suspended as ED of Erdasan Group Berhad, was once an ED of five PLCs. He sat on the boards of Pasukhas Group Berhad, Advance Information Marketing Berhad, AE Multi Holdings Berhad and Trive Property Group Berhad before gradually resigned from these PLCs in November 2024, December 2024 and March 2025. Mak is currently sought by the Malaysian Anti-Corruption Commission (MACC) to assist in ongoing investigations.

THE DEBATES AROUND MULTIPLE EXECUTIVE ROLES

At first glance, having directors with multiple executive roles offers advantages like broader perspectives and streamlined decisionmaking. On the flip side, this practice can also raise concerns about overboarding, diluted focus, potential conflict of interest and heightened scrutiny from shareholders, particularly when a company is underperforming.

Generally, large companies are better positioned to manage such arrangements given their deeper talent pools, more robust governance framework and greater resources. They typically maintain a well-structured distribution of roles, with a clear delineation of power, authority, and accountability between the chairman, MD, executive directors, and senior management.

The chairman is responsible for the leadership of the Board while leading the Board in upholding good corporate governance practices. In the meantime, the MD serves as the conduit between the Board and management while overseeing the day-to-day operation and developing and implementing Bssoard policies and corporate strategies. On top of this, EDs (if appointed) and senior management play supporting roles, enabling efficient decision-making and addressing strategic or operational issues in a timely manner.

However, even in large, well-resourced companies, EDs risk spreading themselves too thin, let alone mid and smaller PLCs where resources and management bandwidth are far more constrained.

Once darlings of the Malaysian stock market, Genting and Genting Malaysia were removed from the benchmark index at the end of last year-a stark signal of declining prominence. Both companies posted fourth-quarter losses in FY2024, weighed down by mounting debt, weak growth prospects, and shrinking dividends. Such performance inevitably raises questions about the effectiveness of EDs in steering companies forward.

Yet, it is even more perplexing to see individuals holding executive roles across multiple boards-particularly in PLCs with persistently poor financial performance, such as Erdasan, Pasukhas, Advance Information Marketing, and AE Multi, which have all been loss-making for at least five consecutive years.

This raises fundamental questions: Are these EDs dedicating sufficient time, focus, and resources to address the deeprooted issues in these struggling companies? If they are unable or unwilling to demonstrate the commitment required to drive a turnaround, how can they expect shareholders to place trust in their leadership?

Moreover, it warrants scrutiny of the Nomination Committee's assessment process - specifically, how it evaluates the fit and properness of EDs who hold multiple roles, particularly when financial performance remains dismal. In loss-making PLCs, the expectation is not mere maintenance but transformation that requires full-time commitment, strategic focus, and accountable leadership.

Paragraph 2.20A of Bursa's LR stipulates that every PLC must ensure its directors and chief executive possess the necessary character, experience, integrity, competence, and time to discharge their roles effectively. This reinforces the growing regulatory emphasis on directors' ability to dedicate sufficient time and attention to their responsibilities, ensuring that they are not merely qualified on paper but also meaningfully engaged in promoting the company's long-term success and governance integrity.

ssThe issue becomes even more concerning when EDs sit on multiple boards with overlapping interests or related-party transactions. In such cases, standard safeguards like disclosures and abstentions may fall short. Safeguarding confidentiality and avoiding undue influence between boardrooms is difficult, and even the perception of divided loyalties can erode stakeholder trust and compromise boardroom integrity.

WHEN COMMITMENT COUNTS

Ultimately, the core issue isn't simply how many executive roles a director holds but whether they can effectively fulfil the demands of each role without compromising governance standards or business performance. There is no one-size-fits-all solution- what matters is the director's capacity to commit, lead, and deliver tangible results across the board.

So, should an individual serve in executive roles across multiple boards? It depends on governance, capacity, and, most importantly, performance.
