EPF members with more than RM100,000 in Account 1 can withdraw up to 10% or RM60,000 – whichever is lower

According to Employees Provident Fund (EPF), contributors with Account 1 savings of not more than RM100,000 are allowed to withdraw up to RM10,000 under its expanded i-Sinar facility, with the payments to be staggered over a maximum period of six months. The first payment can be as much as RM5,000. Those who have more than RM100,000 savings in Account 1 can now withdraw up to 10% of their savings or up to RM60,000 – whichever is lower. The amount will similarly be paid out on a staggered basis, over a maximum period of six months, with the first payment being as much as RM10,000. EPF also noted that the expanded facility will now benefit up to eight million eligible members, an increase from the two million eligible contributors initially announced in November. The statutory pension fund has separated its eligible contributors into two categories. Category 1 comprises members that are workers in the formal sector, self-employed workers and workers in the gig economy, those who have not contributed to the EPF for a period of time, have lost their jobs, those who are housewives and those given no pay leave. Those under Category 1 would only be eligible if they have not contributed to the EPF for at least two consecutive months on application, or those who are still working but have suffered a reduction of their base salary by 30% and above from March 1 onwards. Eligible members under Category 1 will not be required to provide supporting documents and approval will be automatic based on EPF's internal data, with members needing to only apply online via isinar.kwsp.gov.my starting from Dec 21. Payment for eligible members under this category will be done from the middle of January 2021. Members of Category 2 comprise those that have seen a 30% reduction or more in their total income, which includes base salary and other benefits such as allowances and overtime from March 1 onwards, whereby the said reduction can only be verified with supporting documents. Those under this category will have to provide their salary slips before and after reduction of income and employer's notice of suspension or reduction of allowances and/or overtime claims. Those who are not able to provide these supporting documents may provide other relevant supporting documents such as bank statements or employer's written acknowledgement for due consideration. Category 2 members can start applying online via isinar.kwsp.gov.my starting from Jan 11, 2021. To ensure due consideration is given for applications, members' application status will be notified to them within two to three weeks after their application is submitted. Payment will be done before the end of the following month, after the application is approved. To ensure the application process is smooth, members are advised to register for i-Akaun, update their mobile number to receive the transaction authorisation code at an EPF kiosk or counter, as well as ensure that their bank account number is active.

MIDF expects Malaysian economy to grow 7% next year on consumer and business spend, external demand

According to MIDF Research economist Abdul Muizz Morhalim, the Malaysian economy is expected to rebound and grow at 7% next year, from a negative growth of 4.8% this year, mainly driven by a recovery in consumer and business spending, as well as growing external demand. With a Covid-19 vaccine expected to be available in the second half of next year, it would be a key factor that would boost confidence in the economic outlook going forward. The estimate fell in between Bank Negara Malaysia (BNM) and the Ministry of Finance's growth target of 6.5% to 7.5% next year. On the supply side, all sectors are expected to record a positive growth next year. The manufacturing sector will benefit from recovered demand from both domestic-oriented and trades-oriented activities. Furthermore, improved consumer spending will provide support to the recovery in the services sector. Construction is expected to rebound strongly after a sharp fall this year, due to the implementation of infrastructure projects. On the back of the global recovery, Malaysia's trade activities are projected to pick up in 2021, with exports to grow by 5.3% next year, as compared to a negative growth forecast of 3.5% this year. The government will also provide positive support to Malaysian economy given the expansionary budget it has been tabling recently. Consumer spending will increase, supported by government initiatives such as Bantuan Prihatin Rakyat and the flexibility of funds withdrawal from Employees Provident Fund (EPF). Meanwhile, the unemployment rate in 2021 is expected to decline to 3.8%, from 4.3% as a result of a recovery in the labour market. This was underpinned by improved domestic demand and growing trade that will lead to an improvement in employment. Inflation is also expected to increase 2.2% next year, rebounded from a negative growth of 1% this year, due to expiry of some government support, for instance, electricity discounts which will end by the end of this year. The higher commodity price will also contribute to higher inflation and that recovery in consumer spending and food price inflation have also led to higher inflation. As the economy continues to recover and inflation is expected to rise, BNM

“ Malaysian economy expected to grow 7% next year on consumer and business spend, external demand ” is projected to begin normalising the Overnight Policy Rate (OPR) and raise interest rates by 25 basis points by the end of 2021. As the household debt in Malaysia is quite high (87.5% of GDP as of June-2020), BNM will probably want to address the issue. On the ringgit outlook, the local currency is expected to appreciate towards RM4.04 per US dollar (2019: RM4.10/dollar) by year-end of 2021 and averaging around RM4.08 per US dollar (2019: MYR4.20/dollar). The Malaysian ringgit is forecasted to strengthen, benefitting from the higher oil prices as well as the expectation of demand for emerging market currencies, including Malaysian ringgit, given the low interest rates environment in advanced markets.

Natural gas to contribute RM400mil to public finances over next decade

According to Petrolia Nasional Bhd (Petronas) president and group chief executive officer Tengku Muhammad Taufiq Tengku Aziz, Natural gas is expected to contribute nearly RM400bil to public finances over the next decade and provides a major economic contribution to gas-producing states. The natural gas industry is a significant and direct contributor to Malaysia's economic growth with widespread local economic impact. Near 15,000 jobs have been created by the industry across Sarawak and Terengganu. Research has highlighted that the industry creates over 80,000 jobs in the wider economy whereby for every 10 people employed in the natural gas industry, more than 25 jobs are created in the wider economy. In supporting the growth of the natural gas industry, Petronas had invested over RM18bil in the development of the necessary gas infrastructure, which in turn had improved the country's energy security. As a long-term liquefied natural gas (LNG) player, Petronas is fully invested to unlock its potential as its pathway to a low-carbon future for the next generation. To date, more than 11,000 cargoes had been delivered safely to Petronas' core markets from its global portfolio of facilities in Malaysia, Australia, Egypt, and soon in Canada. The new global energy landscape had called for greater collaborations between producers, consumers and governments to ensure the ecosystem, wherein gas is the preferred fuel of choice that benefits all stakeholders, was created.

The strong and forward-looking energy policies combined with government support and intervention are the most pivotal key influencing factors for a conducive ecosystem that promotes cleaner energy solutions. In Malaysia, supportive policies by the government to liberalise the gas market continue to bear fruit with market-based pricing and third-party access being introduced to spur a more competitive gas marketplace in the country. As Malaysia's national oil company, Petronas continued to work closely with policymakers and authorities in shaping the ongoing National Energy Policy and Natural Gas Roadmap that would ensure alignment of policy objectives to address the energy trilemma and grow the significance of cleaner energy use in the country.
