Malaysia's economy to remain on positive growth trajectory

According to Inter-Pacific Asset Management Sdn Bhd chief executive officer Datuk Dr Nazri Khan, Malaysia's economy is expected to remain on the positive growth trajectory moving forward despite uncertainty on the global economic front as the country still has ample liquidity buffers. Despite a surge in the US inflation recently, Malaysian bonds namely Malaysian Government Securities remained stable. The market is falling not due to economic factors but due to inflation rising faster than expected. We can see a massive fall in bonds (in the US), but Malaysian bonds, relatively, are not affected so far. We still have ample liquidity, Bank Negara cut the interest rate four times last year. So, there is a possibility for the central bank to reduce it further to 1.5% (from 1.75%), that could be to stimulate the economy. So, we have bullets to support the economy, as well the stock market. The US Federal Reserve chairman Jay Powell triggered a sudden sell-off in long-term US Treasury debt and equities after he vowed to keep monetary policy steady even as the economy improves and inflation begins to rise. This has raised concern among investors that the central bank is reacting too slowly to the recent rise in inflation expectations and long-term Treasury yields. The US five-year break-even rate, a market-based measure of inflation expectations, exceeded 2.5% on Wednesday for the first time since 2008, Bloomberg data shows. Meanwhile Bursa Malaysia is expected to trend higher next week, touching 1,600 points, driven by the downward trend in Covid-19 infections to below 2,000 daily cases of late, as well as the continued recovery in oil prices. The market is also expected to gain some support over speculation of a snap 15th general election lingering in the market. It could be held once the pandemic is contained as assured by Prime Minister Tan Sri Muhyiddin Yassin. The improving US-China relations under Joe Biden's administration is also good catalyst for Malaysia. As an open economy, where both countries are among our major trading partners, Malaysia should be riding on the positive development to grow the economy.

Digitalisation, fintech tie-ups offer new avenues for Islamic finance

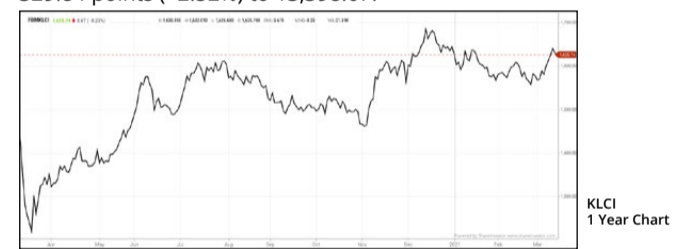

According to Bursa Malaysia Bhd chairman Tan Sri Abdul Wahid Omar, higher digitalisation and financial technology (fintech) collaborations can help strengthen the Islamic finance industry's resilience and open new avenues for growth. Technology is also being increasingly used towards enhancing financial literacy, which has a positive relationship with financial inclusion. Increasing financial literacy could certainly increase participation in the Islamic financial system and the adoption of Islamic financial products and services. Despite the challenging environment that affected the Islamic finance industry's growth in 2020, Covid-19 offers an opportunity to accelerate and unlock its long-term potential. The pandemic and various lockdown measures have led to the rapid growth in digital solutions to reach out to a broader audience and create a nimbler Islamic finance industry. Many Islamic fintech startups are now offering digital mortgage platforms, wealth management and mobile applications such as Wahed Invest, Qard Hassan, HelloGold, and BEST Invest. Islamic finance is no longer a domain exclusive only to Muslims – it has grown to be a US$2 trillion (RM8.23 trillion) industry and continues to receive strong interest as an avenue for funding and raising investment. In Malaysia, the Islamic finance has much to offer given its resilient financial system and innovative ecosystem including Bursa Malaysia-i, which offers faith-based investors a unique proposition and platform for Syariah-compliant investing. As of January 2021, a total of 79% of listed companies on Bursa Malaysia are Syariah-compliant, with a market capitalisation of RM1.2 trillion. To support the growing demand for sustainability, Bursa Malaysia will also continue to strengthen and broaden our Syariah-compliant offerings with the aim of increasing investors' participation and allow them to fulfil their social responsibility of contributing wealth towards economic growth and society's welfare. This includes using Islamic social funding instruments such as Qard Hassan, social sukuk, waqf and zakat as a sustainable means for equitable distribution of wealth to help companies and individuals economically affected by the pandemic. Bursa Malaysia has pledged to contribute 1% of its profit after tax or RM3.8mil towards community projects that would positively change and benefit society. This was inclusive of the inaugural RM667,000 zakat payment.

Data Drives Markets' Optimism

Markets

It was indeed a topsy turvy week for markets over the past few trading sessions as we saw equity, fixed income, currencies and commodities whipsawed with rotational interest among asset classes taking precedence. While markets were pre-occupied with the rise in long bond yields, it was economic data points that helped most equity markets to close firmer across the globe as investors cheered better than expected reading in some key monthly figures. These include the US job numbers and China's euphoric rise in its exports for the first two months of 2021. The passing of the US$1.9 trillion stimulus package by the US Senate too was instrumental as it paved the way for the widely anticipated handouts. In between a volatile week, Nasdaq went into a corrective phase before rebounding, Dollar hit fresh 3½ month high before retreating and oil surged past US$70 before giving up some of its gains. The Dow hit fresh record high on Wednesday, while locally, crude palm oil price hit fresh 13-year high, surpassing the RM4,000 psychological mark and closing at RM4,053 per tonne.

Economy

At the start of the week in review, the US Labour

Department released the jobs data for the month of February with non-farm payrolls surging to 379,000, almost double than the market's forecast of about 200,000. As a result, US unemployment rate continued to improve with the last rate at 6.2%. Meanwhile, China unveiled a modest above 6% GDP growth target for the year at the National People's Congress as Premier Li also set a much lower budget deficit of 3.2% for 2021. China reported a 154.9% surge in February exports while imports rose by 17.3%. The significant gain for the month was mainly due to the low-base effect last year due to Covid-19 lockdown in some parts of China. Meanwhile, the February US headline inflation reading was at 1.7%, well within expectations, but core inflation rose less than expected, easing investors' inflation fears, for now.

In local economic news, last Friday, Bank Negara revealed that Malaysia's international reserves dipped marginally to US$109bil as at 26th February against US$109.7bil a fortnight before. Malaysia also saw the January unemployment creeping up marginally to 4.9% from the Dec-19 reading of 4.8%.

Corporate

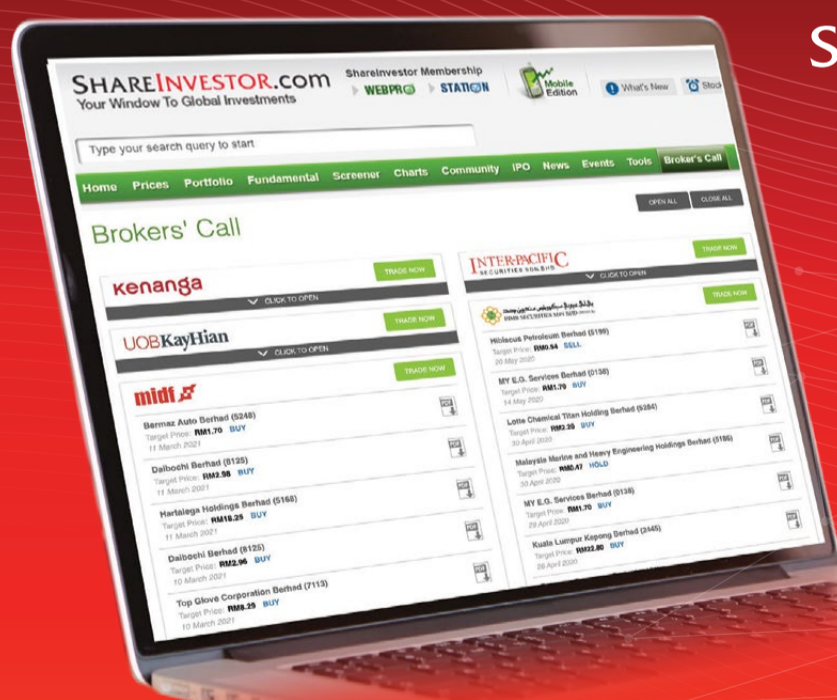

Top Glove made corporate history for companies that are listed on Bursa Malaysia when it announced its 2Q results that showed net earnings swelled to RM2.87bil – which is the highest quarterly earnings ever reported by a corporate. Still on gloves, Hartalega plans to rollout 16 new glove factories over the next 20 years at a massive investment value of RM7bil. In the property sector, UEM Sunrise inked a deal to buy Dutch Lady Milk Industries' 9.93 acre land for RM200mil while AXIS REIT continues to expand its footprint with the purchase of a warehouse and office building for RM120mil.

Equity

In terms of equity market's performance, the KLCI was one of the best performing indices in Asia for the past five trading days, rising by 3%, while other markets that were firmer rose by between 0.5% to 3.3%. Markets that were weaker for the period up to 11th March saw losses ranging between 0.4% and 2.4%. In terms of market participation, local retail investors remained the largest net buyers in the equity market for the period between 4th March to 10th March with net buying interest of RM163mil while local institutions were net sellers valued at RM288mil.

5 Singapore Companies with Dividend Yield above 5% for the Past 3 Years

The dividend yield, expressed as a percentage, is a financial ratio that shows how much a company pays out in dividend each year relative to its stock price. It is an estimate of the dividend-only return of stock investment. Assuming the dividend per share remained the same, the yield will rise when the price of the stock falls. Conversely, it will fall when the price of the stock rises.

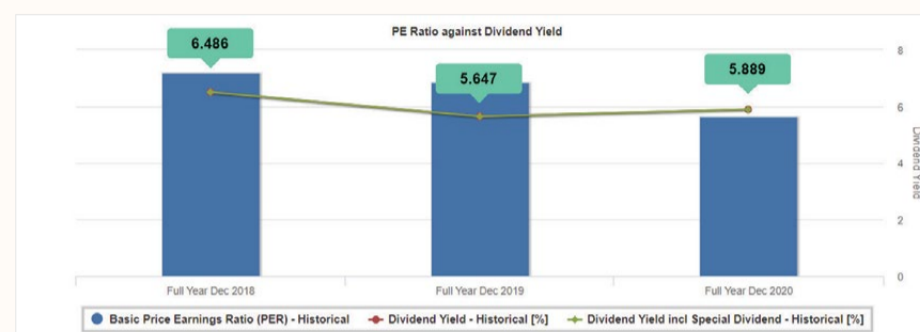

Given the current low interest rate environment, investors can look to include dividend paying stocks into their portfolio as part of diversification. As a reference, a good yield typically ranges around 4 – 6%.

1 CSE Global Limited (SGX: 544)

For the past 3 financial years, CSE Global's dividend yield has been above 5%. With total dividend per share being the same across the years, the declining yield can be explained by the steady increase in its share price.

CSE Global's share price is last traded at S$0.505, with a market capitalization of S$258.12 million.

2 Fu Yu Corporation Limited (SGX: F13)

For the past 3 financial years, Fu Yu's dividend yield has been above 5%. Like CSE Global, Fu Yu's total dividend per share has also kept at the same level. This goes to show that Fu Yu's share price has been on a steady growth, which resulted in the decline of its dividend yield.

Fu Yu's share price is last traded at S$0.29, with a market capitalization of S$218.36 million.

Click here to find out more about the company profile and key statistics.

3 Maxi-Cash Financial Services Corporation Limited (SGX: 5UF)

For the past 3 financial years, Maxi-Cash's dividend yield has jumped from 6.46% to 19.25% in FY2020. This can be attributed to the sharp rise in total dividend per share. Furthermore, its share price not being to outpace the rise in dividend payout also contributed to spike in dividend yield.

Maxi-Cash's share price is last traded at S$0.182, with a market capitalization of S$188.40 million.

Click here to find out more about the company profile and key statistics.

4 Hotung Investment Holdings Limited (SGX: BLS)

For the past 3 financial years, Hotung's total dividend per share has been on a fluctuating trend. This resulted in its dividend yield displaying a similar trend as its dividend yield has hit a high of 12.17% in FY2020. Therefore, this indicates that its share price and dividend yield are moving in tandem.

Hotung's share price is last traded at S$1.84, with a market capitalization of S$176.55 million.

Click here to find out more about the company profile and key statistics.

5 Hafary Holdings Limited (SGX: 5VS)

For the past 3 financial years, Hafary's total dividend per share has been kept at the same level. With the decline in its share price, this has resulted in the uptrend of its dividend yield, from FY2018's figure of 5.9% to 6.9% in FY2020.

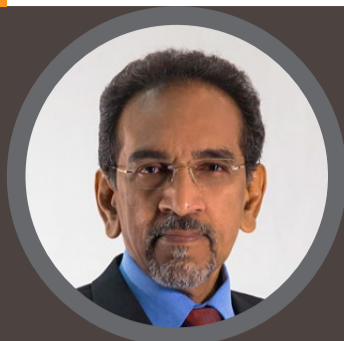

Hafary's share price is last traded at S$0.146, with a market capitalization of S$62.86 million.

Devanesan Evanson
Chief Executive Officer, Minority Shareholders Watch Group

The Q&A Session with AmBank

Last Friday (26 February), AMMB Holdings Berhad (AmBank Group) dropped a bombshell in the market with the announcement of a RM2.83 billion settlement with the Malaysian government in relation to the historical transactions involving 1Malaysia Development Berhad (1MDB) and its related entities. This was unprecedented for the country and is probably the largest such settlement by a banking group in Southeast Asia. The RM2.83 billion amounted to 94 sen of AmBank Group's book value per share. This provision will be reflected in its Q4FY21 results, which is expected to push the group into the red for its financial year ending 31 March 2021 (FY2021), according to analysts. As a result, there will be no final dividends distributed to shareholders for FY2021. Subsequently, AmBank Group reached out to the Minority Shareholders Watch Group (MSWG) this Tuesday (2 March) to address our questions and concerns. It is commendable that the Group was proactive in reaching out to the financial community, its shareholders and other stakeholders. We understand that over the last weekend and the additional two-day of trading suspension, AmBank Group had reached out to 40 to 50 stakeholders to allay their concerns and address their questions.

Who should be held accountable for the settlement?

During the meeting, MSWG questioned the Bank on who should be held accountable; from whom should retribution be sought; and who within AmBank Group over the years should be held accountable.

We also asked if there was a breach of fiduciary duty by some or all the directors at the material time; and whether action would be taken by the Bank to recover the settlement amount or at least a portion of the settlement amount. AmBank answered that they are reserving all their rights to take action against those involved. The decision on the option to pursue will be one that will be decided by the board. Besides, we also highlighted that as the bank comes from a highly regulated industry, its governance structures and processes adopted would have been more robust, efficient and effective.

At least five levels of governance structures and processes will be involved - the compliance function, the risk function and the risk management committee, the internal audit function and the audit committee, the CEO and the C-suite, and finally the Board and the independent directors. Surely, some of them should have, could have or would have highlighted the risks and consequences of carrying out such transactions. Was it a case of board/management overriding the controls embedded in the governance structures and processes? AmBank Group should indulge in much self-examination as to what happened. The RM2.83 billion settlement, which is about 30% of AmBank's market capitalisation of RM9.52 billion before the announcement, will put a dent on its bottom-line. Shareholders too will be affected as share prices plunged and there will be no final dividends for FY2021. There must be accountability; it is not as simple as just stating 'let's just put this behind us and move on'.

The need for a two-day suspension on trading

We also asked about the need to suspend the counter for two market days given that the announcement regarding the settlement was not a complicated announcement that required two market days to digest. It is the responsibility of a stock exchange to ensure continuous trading so that shareholders can better manage their risks by exiting/entering in a timely manner. Given the bombshell, some minority shareholders may have wanted to "get out" as soon as possible. AmBank explained that one of the reasons for the two-day suspension was to reach out to the various groups of stakeholders to quell their concerns. We understand that AmBank Group had reached out to at least 40 to 50 stakeholders thus far. And given the unprecedented quantum of the settlement and its material impact on the Group, the Bank felt that the two-day suspension was warranted to address concerns. Obviously, the Exchange concurred with AmBank's views. Now with hindsight, we also realise that the shareholders may have benefited from reading the various research reports and recommendations during the two-day suspension period and as such, be in a better position to make an informed decision.

Settlement announced out of the blue

Our other question was on the suddenness of news of the settlement. There was no pre-warning, profit guidance or note of a contingent liability; there was no inkling at all. AmBank informed that robust discussions on the settlement took place in early February 2021 and it was only given "a few days" to negotiate the settlement. There does not appear to be any evidence of leakage of news of these discussions in terms of share price and volume movements and arguably, making an announcement without a final figure may have impacted the fair and orderly trading of the shares. The two-day suspension can only be justified by the sheer size of the unprecedented settlement.

Allegations of insider trading

Amidst all this, there has been allegations of insider trading on the stock from December 2020 onwards. Insider trading is a serious offence under the Capital Markets and Services Act 2007. It creates an unlevel playing field; and this is not fair on minority shareholders. The Securities Commission (SC) will probably be looking out for abnormal or abrupt trading patterns by the insiders. The SC is likely to be interested in asking for the motivation and rationale for some of these trading patterns. At this point in time, the issue of insider trading is mere allegation; we should let the regulator do their work.

What should minority shareholders do?

Based on the meeting with AmBank, we were given to understand that the settlement with the government is full and final in relation to the legacy issues. There will be no final dividends for FY2021. There is a need for the Bank to restore the Core Equity Tier 1 (CET1) ratio that will decline to 11% after the settlement, from 13.5% as at the end of December 2020. This may affect future quantum of dividends. Furthermore, there are possible revisions to AmBank Group's corporate credit rating and the financial institution ratings of its banking subsidiaries by the credit rating agencies. A downgrade in credit ratings will increase the cost of capital for the Bank. As expected, on lifting of the suspension, the share price fell to accommodate the negative news. Minority shareholders are advised to read the Bank's press release in full. They should also read the available research analysts reports and their recommendations.

According to Bloomberg, as at 3 March 2021, there were six "sell" calls on AmBank, four "buy" recommendations, and seven "hold" calls. Macquarie, which has an "underperform" recommendation on AmBank, pegs the lowest target price of RM2.50. Meanwhile, TA Securities Holdings Bhd and KAF-Seagroatt & Campbell Securities Sdn Bhd, both of which are recommending their clients to buy AmBank shares, have the highest target price of RM4. This clearly shows that there is no consensus recommendations on the stock even amongst the research analysts. Obviously, there is no simplistic recommendation as to whether to buy, sell or stay invested. It would all depend on the minority shareholders risk appetite and how they view things.
